

Peanut Science

Peanut Science is a peer-reviewed on-line research journal dedicated to publishing the results of Research, Education, and/or Extension projects and programs directly involved with or applicable to the production, storage, processing, manufacturing or marketing of peanuts.

Peanut Science is published exclusively online and every issue published issue (1974-2017) is available through the website www.peanutscience.com. One of the best features of the Peanut Science website is its database. Search by subject, author, key word to easily find what you need. Peanut Science is open access and you are welcome to download and print copies for your use exclusively. (See our copyright statement)
